Business & IT Consultancy welcomes Angus Kidd to boardroom appointment

Angus Kidd has been appointed to the board of Waterstons, business and IT consultancy, as a non-executive director.

Angus Kidd has been appointed to the board of Waterstons, business and IT consultancy, as a non-executive director. Angus has extensive experience working internationally, with the majority of his successful career focussed on compliance and risk management in financial services organisations such as Credit Suisse and as an advisor for Standard Chartered Bank.

Angus said "The opportunity to join Waterstons at such a pivotal time in their growth was what really attracted me. I believe my experience in growing successful businesses in new territories will be hugely valuable.

I'm also really excited to become part of an organisation whose values and culture put their people and their clients at the heart of everything they do. This fresh approach is leading to sustainable growth through happy people and happy clients. I look forward to helping them continue to grow their business in this way.

I'm very keen to share my experience of diversifying service offerings in new areas and helping them break into new markets".

Michael Stirrup, CEO of Waterstones said “We’re delighted Angus has chosen to join us. Angus brings to Waterstones invaluable experience in growing and nurturing international businesses and we look forward to tapping into his knowledge and expertise to help us continue to develop both our UK and international presence. His professionalism, passion and enthusiasm are striking, and the other board members are equally as excited about his appointment.
